Heritage Week Includes Storytelling Festival

Recognition For School Children's Stories

By Loree Jones

Washington County School District hosts its first annual storytelling festival, Tuesday, January 13, beginning at 1:00 p.m., in the boardroom of the Washington county library.

Storytelling festivals have been held in many of the local schools and the winning entries will be read by the schoolchildren. This is sure to be a fun filled afternoon. All participants will receive recognition from Washington school district. Winners in the categories of: Folk Tales, Fantasy, Myth, Mystery, Original, Humorous and Serious will perform in an preopening event of the Dixie Lites through the months of January and February 1998.
