

WORK PROGRESSING AT THE PUNCH BOWL DOME OIL LOCATION

G. W. Hail, operations manager of the Arrowhead Petroleum corporation, invited E. J. Pickett, president of the company, and the News' editor to take a trip to the Punch Bowl Dome well Saturday morning, December 14, to view the drilling operations and see the oil indications that they are finding.

According to Mr. Hail, the directors are well satisfied with the indications they are finding and while they do not expect to bring in a well in the immediate future, or care to make any predictions, he declares that they are pleased with the oil and gas showings that they are encountering.

At the present time this well is down 2306 feet and, Mr. Hail announces the company is adequately financed to carry through the exploration of this well.
