Foreword

Our Woodward High

Words and Music by Clara Woodhouse

In a valley of dreams we are building
On foundations our fathers have laid
A school of knowledge, of friendship, of wisdom,
And of glory that never will fade.

Our Woodward High we'll ever love thee
And strive to hold your standards high,
Your flag of blue and gold shall guide us
And be an emblem in the sky.

We'll guard your honor, praise your virtues
And never let your spirit die
We'll work for you, fight for you, love you,
Forever, Woodward High!

As the years come and go we will guide thee
On to victories that now are foretold.
The hills surrounding will echo thy praises,
As we fight for our flag blue and gold.

You Can Obtain the Keys

OVER THE centuries people have found that education provides keys which unlock new doors to new worlds. Through study we open vast storehouses of information and knowledge in spiritual, social, civic, and economic activities, and in the arts and sciences.

MILTON E. MOODY.

AS THIS fruitful year at Woodward recedes into history, I am reminded of the poetic lines of Hilaire Belloc:

"Of this bad world the loveliest and the best
Has smiled and said 'Good Night' and gone to rest."

Happily, the camera has caught and preserved for us a small part of one of the "loveliest and best" years at Woodward. To the Woodwardia staff we are all indebted. Congratulations.
